- SOCIALIZATION: From day one till around 6 months, a puppy is in the Critical Period, so called because of the essential need to properly expose the puppy to the world around them during the puppy's impressionable period. Whatever positive or negative experiences the puppy has during this time will shape the pup's temperament and his future. Using classical conditioning (pavlovian conditioning) and positive reinforcement, the trainer will help the puppy make positive associations to experiences and "cushion" the positive around the puppy to help guard against the possibility of negative experiences having a long term effect. The puppy will be exposed to many different environments and have monitored doggy play dates. Attention will be put towards introducing the puppy to a variety of people, dogs, places, sounds, and textures.

The Trainer and Owner(s) may decide to add on or take off training to better fit the Owner(s) needs, as decided by Owner(s) and Trainer.

The Trainer will provide the Owner(s) with updates on the pup's progress, through tutorial videos and emails.

The Trainer will also provide an overall evaluation letter that explains the pup's unique temperament and any observances made about the pup through the training program.

The Trainer will also provide the Owner(s) with many helpful handouts on getting started and continuing training. A complete guide on how to use the vocal and hand cues will also be provided.
